

WORLD WATER DAY MARCH 22

By Tom Waldoch

By now, everyone at MPLC should be aware of the world water crisis. We have been talking about it for three years now. We have celebrated World Toilet day on November 19, World Water Day March 22, and you have generously contributed thousands of dollars to LWR, "Fill the Well" and other water organizations.

We are not alone in our recognition of this crisis. I had the privilege of viewing a World Premier of a documentary at The Wingspread Foundation last year called "The Balanced Equation," which focused on chemical treatment and water filtration to purify water. What is most remarkable and astounding is that this was produced, filmed and recorded on location in the Dominican Republic and Kenya, edited and graphically designed by two Racine High School students. This professional quality documentary was produced by students Samantha Noll of Case High School and Madison Richards of Horlick High School. These two young ladies have started their own production company called MaS Productions and have won three national documentary competitions with over 1,000 entries!

We are pleased to show this documentary between the 8:30 and 11:00 services right after the coffee fellowship time in late March or April. We will let you know the exact date when available. In the mean time, let me direct you to more information on the world water crisis and what is being done about it at www.water.org .
